FEELINGS

152.4

As kids encounter new situations, they find it difficult to articulate feelings. The expressive illustrations and everyday examples in this series teach kids the vocabulary to say how they really feel. More intense feelings are examined in a fantasy setting (such as dreams or imagination), giving readers the safety of an unreal context. A matching game borders each spread, and learning extensions for parents and teachers are appended.

MEDIA POWER*302.23

How much power does the media have? With information so readily available today, the answer may be “more than we think.” This thought-provoking series guides readers to use critical thinking skills and analyze whether the information they get is guiding or reflecting everyday life. With case studies highlighting widely publicized people and events, readers will be able to study the power of media.

MONSTROUS MANNERS

395

The “monsters” in this series behave, well, monstrously—until they learn their manners, that is! Each monster is unaware of his or her bad behavior, but gets gently corrected by an older sibling or friend. By the end of each story, each “monster” starts to behave, and the surprise ending will delight readers.

AESOP'S FABLES REMIXED

398.24

Aesop's fables are still relevant, even though it can be hard for young people to identify with the tales. This series remixes the fables into modern settings with relatable human characters. We may not be crying "wolf," but lying still leads to mistrust, and these updated stories let kids explore how the morals relate to their lives.

DO YOU REALLY WANT A PET?

636.0887

So you really want a pet? The dog will turn your house into a gym if you don't walk him, the cat will join a gang if you don't bring it in at night, and the rabbit will begin looking like a walrus with nothing to chew. These humorous but cautionary tales show kids why they should be careful of what they wish for or at least be prepared for the responsibility.

PRIVACY IN THE ONLINE WORLD*323.448

Privacy concerns have grown exponentially as society - including students, businesses, consumers, and government - conduct all sorts of transactions and routinely communicate online. Privacy in the Online World provides a historical perspective on privacy rights and concerns and examines who has access to personal information, how they get it, why they collect it, how they use it, why this is sometimes controversial, what privacy protections exist, and what new protections are being proposed or debated. Each book in the series provides a clear, insightful discussion of the issues, integrating facts and contrasting opinions for an informative and balanced perspective. Personal accounts and direct quotes from academic and professional experts, advocacy groups, politicians, and others enhance and support the narrative.

UNDERSTANDING THE HOLOCAUST*940.5318

Between 1938 and 1945 Adolf Hitler and his Nazi regime murdered more than 6 million Jews. This virulent campaign, Hitler's so-called Final Solution, began with hatred and exclusion but steadily escalated to encompass persecution, expulsion, and, finally, annihilation. Understanding the Holocaust presents an unstinting look at the people and events that lie at the heart of this dark period in human history. Individual titles explore specific topics such as the death camps and killing centers, resistance, war criminals, survivors, and more. All titles include extensive (and fully documented) primary source quotes, historical details, and insightful and thoughtful narrative.

INFLUENTIAL WOMEN

920

Scientist Marie Curie conducted ground breaking studies on radiation in the late 1800s and early 1900s. More than a century later, Pakistani teenager Malala Yousafzai overcame cultural obstacles and a bullet to the head to speak out about the need for education for young women. These two women lived in very different times and places but their accomplishments, though not at all similar, have influenced people worldwide. Influential Women examines the lives and achievements of some of the world's most fascinating women. Through their own words, and the words of those who have known or studied them, emerge life stories that are well worth reading about again and again.

LIVING HISTORY

930-990

Much of what is known about people's everyday lives in times past comes from artifacts but also from diaries, letters, and other writings. Many important details of life during the Civil War, for instance, can be found in the diaries of women who carried on while their men were at war. In the Living History series, first hand accounts such as these are combined with thoughtful narrative to offer a rich and vivid portrait of daily life in various times and places in history.
